TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

M. J. Shannon has been appointed collector and canvasser for the states of Idaho and Montana. The management speaks for him all the assistance our friends can give. He bears with him a letter of introduction.

SALT LAKE

CITY AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

The synagogue being erected on Third East between Second and Third South streets by the congregation of the Hebrews is up two stories now and work is going ahead rapidly. There will be no delay on the building until it is completed.

The Trenchard-Harrington Furniture company has received three carloads of new furniture, among which is a splendid set of Colonial fixtures.

The Freed Furniture & Carpet company has brought G. W. Lavin from New York to attend to the drapery department of the business. Several of the new drapery creations in the nature of cosy corners in one of the show windows are to be admired.

A number of fall and winter styles in cloaks and wraps have been received by the Keith-O'Brien company and occupy a prominent position in one of the show windows.

Cohn Bros. are having a mid-summer clearance sale on their stock of blankets, quilts and bed covers.

Chemist Herman Hurma, acting under instruction from State Dairy and Food Commissioner Moroni Helmer, has begun a chemical analysis of every brand of butter in the city. There is a suspicion that some of the brands are not as pure as the pure food law specifies they should be.

Word comes from St. Louis that H. F. Murray, the well-known amusement man, has been elected president of the Exposition Commission. The organization is composed of all those who have suggestions and who propose to disport their various attractions during the exposition. Mr. McGarvie was manager of the Pioneer celebration in this city. It is stated that Mr. Frank L. Talbot, who is known here as the manager of the street fair "In Old Madrid," has been appointed on the committee to represent the association in a meeting with the directors of the exhibition.

Not a few of the striking miners from the Cripple Creek district, are migrating to Utah in search of work, as the situation here is known to be in Colorado. The men claim that on account of the mines working out, there is a combination on the part of the big mine owners to keep up dividends by reducing wages, also, that there is a concerted movement on the part of the smelting trust, Citizens' alliance and mine owners to crush the Western Federation of Miners. The fight ahead is regarded as serious, and the outlook is foreboding.

Fresh water bathing is to be a feature of Lagoon next season. Just as soon as the present season closes work on the pool and the bath houses will be commenced. This will be the only place within a radius of many miles where facilities will be afforded for a swim in fresh water.

Another large suburban railway project was unfolded before the city council Monday night, when T. B. Saffey, Millard Pratt and F. M. Lyman, Jr., petitioned that body for a 50-year franchise to operate an electric railroad through this city from the northern to the southern limits.

It is the intention of the promoters of the enterprise to build a twenty-five mile road through Salt Lake, Davis, Weber and Utah counties, and to have the line in operation within two years. Franchises have already been secured from Utah county, where work has started, and the other counties named have been petitioned. United States Senator Reed Smoot, State Senator C. E. Loomis and the Territorial Power company are understood to be back of the scheme.

At 8 o'clock every morning forty-two street sprinkling wagons come out and take 600 gallons of water each. This makes a total of 25,200 gallons that are used in the city. The water is pumped out of the hydrants within a period of ten minutes. This drops the water greatly and in case of a fire it would be almost impossible to secure enough water to extinguish the blaze.

Daniel Eyer, a well-known and prominent capitalist of this city, died at his home, 900 East Fifth street, Mr. Eyer had been a sufferer from chronic rheumatism for twenty years, but the immediate cause of death was apoplexy. The large funeral attended the estate in which Mr. Eyer was held in the cemetery.

Francis James Polkinghorne Pascoe, one of the oldest and best known pioneer mining men of Utah, Idaho and Montana, died at his residence, 1224 Lake street, this city, at an advanced age, of general debility. He had been confined to his home since last November.

Comfort can be enjoyed only by those whose money affairs cause no worry. To be "comfortably rich" is an ideal condition, enjoyed by few and yet within the reach of all. A steady income from money invested in safe securities is a source of comfort and pleasure. When that income is sufficient to live on, the possessor is as rich as any one can possibly be. There is no need then to work or worry, and there is time for the higher aims and pleasures of life. Happily, too, such investments are in the long run more profitable than speculation. Our first mortgage securities, netting 6 per cent per annum, are the safest and best paying investments in the world. The investor holds the security and we do the work. Wedding Bells.

Mayne-Byrne.

A quiet wedding of the week was that of Clifton E. Mayne and Miss Mary A. Byrne of Park City, which took place at Bishop Scanlan's residence on Wednesday afternoon. Both parties are well and favorably known in the "Park," and came down quietly a few days ago to be married by Father Morrissey, who has always been very dear to the bride and groom. The happy young people will remain in the city of the Saints for a few days, after which they will return and be at home to receive the congratulations of their friends in Park City.

The Intermountain Catholic joins the host of friends in wishing the young couple length and happiness of days.

Obituary.

Phelan.

The sympathy of many friends is extended to Miss Ella Phelan in her grief caused by the death of her sister, Miss Laura Phelan. The deceased was a most estimable young woman, possessing many lovable qualities of mind and heart, and her death is deeply deplored by all who knew her. May she rest in peace.

THE CHILDREN'S OUTING.

Orphans and Chorists at Calder's Park on Tuesday.

The members of the Junior choir of St. Mary's church, the guests of Rt. Rev. Bishop Scanlan at Calder's park last Tuesday. The children of the Kearns St. Ann's orphanage also attended, and all had a most enjoyable time. Many of the prominent members of the cathedral parish provided the bountiful lunch. The generous ones were Mesdames O. J. Salisbury, Mr. Judge, J. J. Ivers, Thomas Kearns, M. H. Kervin, J. C. Lynch, C. A. Quigley, M. E. Mulvey, J. E. Doyle, N. E. Doyle, Fred Wray, P. J. Haggenbarth, W. M. O'Brien, P. S. Keogh, W. H. Bantz, C. C. Slade, G. Good, J. Morrison, J. M. Moore, F. Hanson, W. E. Smedley, J. Geoghegan, D. R. Gray, E. McGurkin, J. J. Harvey, Cunningham, J. Sauer, James Hegney, Vadner, T. V. Sloan, Horne, Misses Cosgriff, Noble, O'Meara, O'Brien, Riley, Messrs. C. H. Collins, J. Cosgriff, H. C. Monter and W. M. Rash.

Mr. Arnold, with his usual generosity, furnished street cars free for the children of St. Ann's. During the afternoon Rt. Rev. Bishop Scanlan came out to the park and spent a small portion of the time giving the children rides on the merry-go-round, and for the magician's magic show. The children were very happy, and no expense was made to make the children happy, and they certainly had a splendid day.

Too much gratitude cannot be expressed to Manager Hertz and his charming wife for their untiring efforts to make the outing a success. The park was given over entirely to the children, while Mr. and Mrs. Hertz spent the entire day entertaining them.

Rev. Fathers Harding, Bulmante, Guinan and May spent the afternoon at the park contributing much to the children's pleasure.

The lunch was prepared and well served by Mrs. Hertz, Mrs. C. A. Locke, Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Seldenfaden, Miss O'Brien, Mrs. D. Dillon and Mrs. J. Shannon. All those who so kindly contributed to the little people's happiness would feel amply rewarded had they witnessed the children's enjoyment of the long, happy day.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Scanlan, the clergy of the cathedral and those in charge of the excursion wish to express their sincere thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Hertz of Calder's and all the staff under them, for the great kindness shown to the children and the many courtesies shown to the sisters and ladies who served the lunch; also they desire to tender their appreciation to Mr. Read and Mr. Arnold of the street car system for all the kindness shown to the children of St. Ann's this summer.

The case of lemons used at the picnic was the generous and voluntary donation of W. M. Rash of the Rash Produce company.

The eighteen gallon of ice cream was generously donated by the four always generous ladies of St. Mary's, Mrs. O. J. Salisbury, Mrs. Mary Judge, Mrs. J. J. Ivers and Mrs. Thomas Kearns.

The lady in charge of the soliciting of the lunch for the picnic ladies to express her gratitude to the ladies and gentlemen of the cathedral parish for the generous and kindly way in which they contributed. Only one person refused and was also absolutely rude, but it is well to draw the mantle of charity over the rudeness. Perhaps she thinks that the church organist requires a little humiliation for a tonic during the heated season.

PARK CITY.

Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Wilson entertained a number of their friends Tuesday evening.

Miss Frankie Noonan and Dan Martin were married in Salt Lake last Tuesday and are now enjoying their honeymoon in California.

Mr. W. G. Lamb left Thursday for a two weeks' trip to Colorado.

Mr. Edward Paxton returned from the metropolis Monday.

On Monday Mrs. John Foley presented her husband with twins, a boy and girl. The boy lived only a short while after birth, but the girl and mother and John are doing nicely.

M. J. Daly spent a few days in Salt Lake last week.

Father Galligan attended the funeral of Katie Leahy in Salt Lake last week.

Mrs. James Corrigan is improving rapidly. She got her arm fractured near the elbow by a fall on the sidewalk last Thursday.

Mr. James Ivers came out from the city Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Quinn spent Thursday in Salt Lake.

OGDEN CITY.

Miss Agnes Maguire has returned from an extensive California trip.

Miss Lizzie Francis, society editor on the Standard, has left for a visit to California.

Miss M. Ione Carroll, a teacher in the Grant school, has returned from a visit in Toledo, O.

The Misses Annie and Marguerite Hanley are visiting their aunts, Mrs. J. R. Robinson and Mrs. Andrew Smyth, and uncles, Mr. Birmingham and Ed Smyth, in Bowling, Wyo.

The list of scientists and experts in forestry and irrigation who will attend the coming meeting of the national irrigation congress at Ogden next month is rapidly being swelled and indications point to the most successful and largely attended congress in the history of the organization. Word was received from Secretary of Agriculture William B. Hays that the congress will be held at Ogden, and that it will be accompanied by some thirty scientists and experts of that department.

Assistant Statistician of the Bureau of Statistics Stephen D. Fessenden and Secretary of the American Irrigation Association Edward A. Bowers of New Haven, Conn., have also sent word that they will be present and take part in the congress.

CAMERLENGO'S HAMMER.

A good deal has been written about the famous little mallet that the Camerlengo of the sacred college uses when he taps the forehead of the dead pope and bids him answer to his name. Writing to the Westminster Gazette, Rev. Herbert Thurston, S. J., remarks: "I think I can say with some confidence that the Cardinal Camerlengo's hammer is a fiction, although there is abundant justification for any one supposing the contrary. Many of the most authoritative sources of information accept the fact unquestioningly; but a few years ago I went to considerable trouble in order to ascertain the truth, through the medium of some friends in Rome, who were in a position to obtain accurate information. The result is as old as the eighteenth century; but the fact seems to be that, although an official 'recognition' of the body takes place, and a formal 'regio' or attestation, is drawn up by a notary in the presence of the Cardinal Camerlengo, the supposed ceremony of the silver hammer has no foundation." Another correspondent of the Westminster writes to point out that the ceremony referred to is vouched for by (1) Adolphus Tholpoe, (2) W. Cartwright, (3) Daniel Concha, (4) J. J. Martini, mentioned by De Brosses, whose "Letters From Italy" contains a full account of the conclave of 1740. "On the other hand," he continues, "I have been assured by an English gentleman, who held and I think still holds position in the papal household, that the ceremony does not take place. It seems probable, therefore, that it was once usual but has now fallen into disuse."

May be Lipton's Mascot.

Just before the close of the luncheon given by the members of the Marine exchange to Sir Thomas Lipton at New York, President Parsons of the exchange reminded his associates that though Sir Thomas had stipulated there be no speeches he wanted the Irish wife presented him with a son. "It will be a good thing," said Sir Thomas, "and if I believe wins no one will cheer louder than I will for the winner." He told a story of his experience since he arrived here early in the summer. He said:

"When I reached here I received a letter from an Irishman at Tompkinsville wishing me every success for Shamrock III. This Irishman said when Shamrock I arrived here in 1899 in my first voyage, I was told that two years later, when Shamrock II came into port she celebrated the occasion by bringing a daughter into the world, and this year as soon as Shamrock III anchored she gave birth to another son."

The Irishman hoped I never would have to come again after the cup, because he said if I did he would be busted. I sent him a few Shamrock pins for the members of his family, and when they were sent back to him he said: 'If by any ill fortune you should not win the cup this year and have to come after it again for heaven's sake don't bring a schooner, for I'm afraid it would be twins.'"

HE ROSE TO POWER ON A WINK.

(New York Press.)

Soon after President Cleveland started on his second term a man who stood high in the councils of the Democratic party went up to the White House. After talking with the president a few moments, he said: "Mr. President, I have a young man for whom I want to get a position. If you have anything in the postoffice department I would be glad to have him get it, as he has been a postmaster out in Ohio. If you can't do that, give him a consulship."

"I am afraid there is nothing in the postoffice department that you can get me willing to take," replied Mr. Cleveland. "We shall see what we can do in the line of a consulship."

President Cleveland forgot all about it until the politician called on him several months later.

"How about that consulship for my young man from Ohio?" he was asked. "Why, he is still here!" asked the president. "Well, I'm sorry to say I haven't a consulship for him. Didn't you say something about the postoffice department?"

"Well, I'm sorry to say I haven't a consulship for him. Didn't you say something about the postoffice department?"

"He can have it," said Mr. Cleveland. "What is his name?"

"Machen—August W. Machen," replied the politician. "I'll bring him up tomorrow to thank you and you can look him over."

The next day he appeared at the White House with a heavy-set young man of about 40. The latter came from a declining family in a small country town. In spite of his youth his face had a benevolent expression, full, with heavy jaw, and with the benignity heightened by a pair of spectacles. His black eyes were set in a placid, almost morose, but his eyes fairly snapped behind the glass lenses. He was courteous, almost obsequious when addressed, and he gave assent with a wink. In deed, it is said he winked when he thanked Cleveland.

The little job down in the postoffice department did not long remain little. Machen looked lazy and indolent, but he was capable of tremendous effort. More over, he had a wink that could mean everything or nothing. So the great delivery division grew to be the greatest in the department. As late as 1897 $20,000 was considered a large appropriation for the fiscal year of 1901 the sum of $12,000,000 was thought to be too small. Machen and his wink did it.

When a member of congress went to the chief of the rural free delivery division and asked to have a route established, his proposal would be received with gravity. Machen's eyes would blink solemnly behind his spectacles.

Of course there are more populous communities; the representative would help him. But if you start this route it will help you. When your appropriation comes up you can count on me."

It was a wink, the only sign of acquiescence Machen ever gave. But the new route would be established. According to the charges filed with the postmaster general and indictments returned by the federal grand jury Machen winked on other occasions.

Even it is built up the most powerful influence that ever fortified a public official. Bold charges were made in new cases, but the chief of the rural free delivery laughed at his enemies and winked at his friends.

When the campaign of 1896 came on, and Democrats must be either for Bryan or against him Machen felt his way with a wink. He did not come out and declare himself as a gold Democrat until he saw clearly the issue of the struggle. Then the wink came. He made a verbal statement, and August W. Machen was a Republican of Republicans.

If he has received financial reward other than his salary he has succeeded admirably in concealing evidence of it. He has lived quietly and modestly. He has not lived a fast life, and no one has accused him of dissipation. He is nothing more or less than a man of the line of benevolence. Without noisy professions he has been generous, ready to help his friends. Instead of slapping his acquaintances on the back, he tends a pudgy hand. And when occasion requires he winks.

"OLD GLORY" IN ST. PETER'S.

Cardinal Gibbons in an interview in Rome is quoted as saying: "Two things have rejoiced and rejuvenated my soul today. One was the election of the supreme pontiff. The other was the sight of the American flag in the Basilica of St. Peter, the head church of Christianity. No church, not even the gorgeous one designed by Michael Angelo, is too old to shelter the stars and stripes. When our American pilgrims, 200 strong, came into St. Peter's today to pay their tribute of affection and respect to the new supreme pastor, I felt proud of my country. I felt they were animated with the strong faith of our fathers. I was thrilled with joy when these pious pilgrims, our priests, our people from New York and elsewhere, carried that beautiful American flag in full view of the 50,000 people who had come to seek the blessing of Pius X. They were obviously proud of Old Glory, for not only did they unfurl the flags, but they waved them again and again. It was a stirring spectacle there in St. Peter's."

"We have made a splendid pope. He is a most amiable pope. We all love him. The whole world will love him when it knows him. It is difficult for us to speak of the future ruling of Pius X. for how can I know it definitely? We know his past has been filled with apostolic zeal and gentle firmness. We know his winning personality. The interests of the church in America are sure to be watched with jealous care and a paternal eye. He was one of the cardinals who have taken a most active interest in the social movement since his elevation to the cardinalate. The result is, I am informed that with the patriarchate of Venice, the social principles laid down by Leo XIII have had a wonderful development. What could be more hopeful for us in America? The great working people that we are, our workmen, while content with their station, and even proud of it, are trying to be better. We wish his holiness to bless our God-loving people who, reading the Declaration of Independence, the magna charta of our constitution, finds God's name in its opening words and in its closing. Should the capitalist live up to the teachings of our church he would not be harsh nor unjust with our toilers."

TO WAGE WAR ON VICE.

Rev. M. J. Byrne, pastor of St. Anne's church, Lafayette, Ind., on Sunday declared in a sermon that he intended at once to begin a warfare against the lawless and immoral places that have secured a location in his parish. It is a portion of the city where for years a number of resorts have been maintained and where observance of the temperance laws have been least regarded. Father Byrne declared they should no longer disgrace his parish, and that he would compel an observance of the law there. He is a learned and much-loved priest and a man of great strength and courage. His declaration of war against vice in the First ward has created a sensation.
